

Proposals for Student Travel Enrichment Grants

Center for International and Intercultural Studies

Funding is available through the Center for International and Intercultural Studies at St. Lawrence University to support students seeking to supplement and enrich their off-campus study experience in some way. The purpose of these grants is to enhance immersion in a different culture and extend international or intercultural awareness. Preference will go to those who have not previously received a grant through CIIS.

Travel Enrichment Grants are intended for students participating in off-campus programs who are connecting an academic or personal/extra-curricular interest with study abroad or with intercultural experience within the U.S.

In developing the proposal, students should as a first step consult with a faculty or staff member who will advise them, review the final draft of the proposal, and write a recommendation about the student and the proposal. Asking someone for a recommendation who has not been involved in helping you shape the proposal will seriously jeopardize your chances for receiving a grant.

DEADLINES FOR GRANT PROPOSALS

For spring semester the deadline is November 5; for fall semester and the academic year the deadline is April 5. Proposals are reviewed by the Committee on International and Intercultural Studies and decisions announced about two weeks after the deadline.

Note: Students seeking funding support for off-campus independent research on international or intercultural projects should use the form “Proposals for Student Independent Travel Research Grants.”

Proposers should follow the format indicated on the reverse.

THE PROPOSAL

Your first step should be to discuss your ideas with an appropriate staff or faculty member. You are also strongly encouraged to have a conversation with staff in the Center for International and Intercultural Studies. Asking someone for a recommendation who has not been involved in helping you shape the proposal will seriously jeopardize your chances for receiving a grant.

The proposal should be single-spaced, word-processed, and include the elements indicated below. Provide the faculty or staff member who is advising you on this proposal with a final draft as well as the accompanying Faculty/Staff Recommendation Form. Submit your proposal by the deadline to the Center for International and Intercultural Studies (CIIS), Carnegie 108. Students who are awarded travel grants will provide CIIS with a one-page summary of their project which will appear on the CIIS web page.

1. Working title for your project
2. Name of Faculty/Staff person with whom you worked to develop the proposal
3. What you propose to do. Be as specific as possible about your goals and about the specific activities for which you seek funding. Also, be clear about the time frame or calendar for your project. The study abroad programs are fully programmed experiences, but most have a week-long break or longer. Some projects can be done on weekends, some after the program ends. Check your off-campus program schedule so that you are clear about the time frame for your project.
4. Your qualifications and preparation. Provide information about the development of your interest or involvement in this topic and, where relevant, course work which has contributed to your interest. Extra-curricular activities including internships, jobs, and other non-academic activities may be relevant background for your proposal.
5. What you expect to gain from the experience. Indicate why this activity is of significance to your St. Lawrence liberal education, and, where relevant, how it will inform subsequent academic work or career planning.
6. A detailed budget for the travel and activity to be supported. Note that CIIS cannot support purchase of equipment such as cameras, tape recorders, etc. You can use reference/travel guides in CIIS and on the internet to project travel expenses. Proposals which show a clear effort on the applicant's part to be economical will be given preference.
