Is it offensive?

- Question of Human Rights Activists
- Many activists and Native Americans find it to be
- We feel the term is a constant reminder of the hardships they’ve endured
- Redskin is a racial slur
- Would you call a Native American a “Redskin” to their face?
- What if it was a racial slur against a different race?
  - Washington Negros or Washington Jews

How is mocking an entire group of people honoring them?

- Native Americans do not feel “honored” to see people imitating their tribal dances and dressing up as Indians when they attend games.
- Using a group of people as a mascot for a sports team is unacceptable
- Even though the team feels that the name is celebrating “Native American heritage” it can’t be and shouldn’t be condoned because the Natives don’t agree.