School Building Leader Initial Certification Program (24 sem. hrs.) Part I*

Students pursuing their initial certification as School Building Leaders through St. Lawrence University’s satellite program experience a cohort model specifically designed to foster personal and professional growth. This program is designed for professional educators seeking to increase their leadership roles and responsibilities in educational settings.

Coursework consists of a rewarding mix of theory and practical application and is completed in one academic year, which is followed by a 400-hour internship experience. This educational leadership program meets NY State standards to prepare students to earn initial certification as a School Building Leader.

Features of the School Building Leader Initial Certification Program include:

• Professional orientation to accommodate the busy work schedules of educators.

• Completion of all coursework in one academic year.

• A strong sense of community that comes from taking classes together as a member of a professional educators cohort.

• Convenient Friday evening and all-day Saturday classes.

• Courses taught by knowledgeable practitioners in the field of education.

• Special reduced tuition of $18,000 (over $200 per credit discount) includes all coursework and internship.

Candidates for initial SBL certification in New York, are required to hold a bachelor’s and master’s degree, complete a New York registered program for school building leaders, receive institutional recommendation, pass a two-part School Building Leader Examination, pass an Educating All Students Exam, have completed three years of full-time paid teaching or pupil services experience in a school setting, and receive a fingerprint clearance.
