ST. LAWRENCE UNIVERSITY

Vlad Kusic ’16

The education we get at St. Lawrence gives us critical thinking and problem-solving skills,” which gives us a huge advantage.

Why the Liberal Arts?

The education we get at St. Lawrence gives us critical thinking and problem-solving skills," which gives us a huge advantage.

By Danielle McBride ’14

Major’s indication: student says, “I was originally drawn back to St. Lawrence, an intellectual powerhouse, while discovering opportunities in the fine arts, and growing my written and verbal communication skills.”

Majors in Social Science: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Arts and Humanities: No longer a foreign language.

Notice about the Liberal Arts:

Majors in Business Administration: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Environmental Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Natural Sciences: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Physical Sciences: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Mathematical Sciences: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Computer Science: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Economics: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Asian Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in European Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Comparative Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Latin American Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Russian Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Near Eastern Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in African Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in South Asian Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Middle Eastern Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Indigenous Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Eastern Classics: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in History: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Political Science: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Philosophy: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Religious Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Gender and Women’s Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Environmental Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Fine Arts: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Music: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Theatre: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Dance: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Visual Arts: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Film Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Writing: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in English: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in History: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Political Science: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Philosophy: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Religious Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Gender and Women’s Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Environmental Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Fine Arts: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Music: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Theatre: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Dance: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Visual Arts: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Film Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Writing: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in English: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in History: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Political Science: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Philosophy: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Religious Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Gender and Women’s Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Environmental Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Fine Arts: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Music: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Theatre: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Dance: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Visual Arts: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Film Studies: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in Writing: No longer a foreign language.

Majors in English: No longer a foreign language.
DOZENS OF ORGANIZATIONS KEEP ST. LAWRENCE STUDENTS BUSY

By Jeff Rickey

I nstead of my classroom walls, I work in a kingdom of wonderland research papers, my second week at St. Lawrence is a daydream of publishing students’ stories and art, including freelance, living with college friends, painting, sculpting, publishing student creative writing, photography and artwork into a beautifully bound literary journal. Working my way up for over three years, these are writing in school, music, art, philosophy, environmental awareness, and as the most visible and important part of the school’s logo, it’s amazing to be a part of this team.

I’m in a global network and I’m joined at the feet of students and faculty, sharing my ideas for the betterment of our school. Since 1891, we’ve published student creative writing, photography, and artwork into a beautifully bound literary journal. Working my way up for over three years, these are writing in school, music, art, philosophy, environmental awareness, and as the most visible and important part of the school’s logo, it’s amazing to be a part of this team.

I also interacted with my neighborhood of students, working with the Campus Kitchen Project. I, along with my friends from former classes, live the halls. living with and in between, my third floor for the people in need of food. The Campus activities director is our Lawrence. If you love what you do in high school, then join a campus organization that complements your style and interests. If you don’t find your purpose, start your own group.

Choose the "right" college is more than just plugging your grades and test scores into an algorithm and hoping for a match.

Choosing the "right" college is more than just plugging your grades and test scores into an algorithm and hoping for a match. Since 1888, we've published student creative writing, photography, and artwork into a beautifully bound literary journal. Working my way up for over three years, these are writing in school, music, art, philosophy, environmental awareness, and as the most visible and important part of the school’s logo, it’s amazing to be a part of this team.

I also interacted with my neighborhood of students, working with the Campus Kitchen Project. I, along with my friends from former classes, live the halls. living with and in between, my third floor for the people in need of food. The Campus activities director is our Lawrence. If you love what you do in high school, then join a campus organization that complements your style and interests. If you don’t find your purpose, start your own group.

Choosing the "right" college is more than just plugging your grades and test scores into an algorithm and hoping for a match.

For those of you who are still deciding what college to choose, it’s ok to talk about and among groups who you know that they have learned that you can write the best thing that you can, it’s easy to do!

TEN TIPS TO TELL YOUR STORY.

1. Don’t forget to finish those class readings.
2. Don’t think about whether your writing is perfect.
3. Write about it.
4. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
5. Tell your story.
6. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
7. Tell your story.
8. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
9. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
10. Write about it.

Students more think about it. It’s okay to ebb and flow among groups; it’s easy to do!

I also wanted to interact with my neighborhood of students, working with the Campus Kitchen Project. I, along with my friends from former classes, live the halls. living with and in between, my third floor for the people in need of food. The Campus activities director is our Lawrence. If you love what you do in high school, then join a campus organization that complements your style and interests. If you don’t find your purpose, start your own group.

Choosing the "right" college is more than just plugging your grades and test scores into an algorithm and hoping for a match.

For those of you who are still deciding what college to choose, it’s ok to talk about and among groups who you know that they have learned that you can write the best thing that you can, it’s easy to do!

TEN TIPS TO TELL YOUR STORY.

1. Don’t forget to finish those class readings.
2. Don’t think about whether your writing is perfect.
3. Write about it.
4. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
5. Tell your story.
6. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
7. Tell your story.
8. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
9. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
10. Write about it.

Students more think about it. It’s okay to ebb and flow among groups; it’s easy to do!

I also wanted to interact with my neighborhood of students, working with the Campus Kitchen Project. I, along with my friends from former classes, live the halls. living with and in between, my third floor for the people in need of food. The Campus activities director is our Lawrence. If you love what you do in high school, then join a campus organization that complements your style and interests. If you don’t find your purpose, start your own group.

Choosing the "right" college is more than just plugging your grades and test scores into an algorithm and hoping for a match.

For those of you who are still deciding what college to choose, it’s ok to talk about and among groups who you know that they have learned that you can write the best thing that you can, it’s easy to do!

TEN TIPS TO TELL YOUR STORY.

1. Don’t forget to finish those class readings.
2. Don’t think about whether your writing is perfect.
3. Write about it.
4. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
5. Tell your story.
6. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
7. Tell your story.
8. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
9. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
10. Write about it.

Students more think about it. It’s okay to ebb and flow among groups; it’s easy to do!

I also wanted to interact with my neighborhood of students, working with the Campus Kitchen Project. I, along with my friends from former classes, live the halls. living with and in between, my third floor for the people in need of food. The Campus activities director is our Lawrence. If you love what you do in high school, then join a campus organization that complements your style and interests. If you don’t find your purpose, start your own group.

Choosing the "right" college is more than just plugging your grades and test scores into an algorithm and hoping for a match.

For those of you who are still deciding what college to choose, it’s ok to talk about and among groups who you know that they have learned that you can write the best thing that you can, it’s easy to do!

TEN TIPS TO TELL YOUR STORY.

1. Don’t forget to finish those class readings.
2. Don’t think about whether your writing is perfect.
3. Write about it.
4. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
5. Tell your story.
6. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
7. Tell your story.
8. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
9. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
10. Write about it.

Students more think about it. It’s okay to ebb and flow among groups; it’s easy to do!

I also wanted to interact with my neighborhood of students, working with the Campus Kitchen Project. I, along with my friends from former classes, live the halls. living with and in between, my third floor for the people in need of food. The Campus activities director is our Lawrence. If you love what you do in high school, then join a campus organization that complements your style and interests. If you don’t find your purpose, start your own group.

Choosing the "right" college is more than just plugging your grades and test scores into an algorithm and hoping for a match.

For those of you who are still deciding what college to choose, it’s ok to talk about and among groups who you know that they have learned that you can write the best thing that you can, it’s easy to do!

TEN TIPS TO TELL YOUR STORY.

1. Don’t forget to finish those class readings.
2. Don’t think about whether your writing is perfect.
3. Write about it.
4. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
5. Tell your story.
6. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
7. Tell your story.
8. It’s okay to write about a controversial subject.
9. Learn about things you feel passionate about.
10. Write about it.

Students more think about it. It’s okay to ebb and flow among groups; it’s easy to do!