St. Lawrence University has done everything possible to assure that our guests experience a rewarding experience. We wish to inform our guests Backcountry skiing/Mountaineering is not risk free. The same elements that contribute to the unique character and fun of Backcountry skiing/Mountaineering, such as the physical exertion or the RISK, can cause loss or damage to equipment, injury, illness, or in extreme cases, permanent trauma or death. We do not want to heighten or reduce your enthusiasm for the experience, but we do want you to know in advance what to expect and to be informed of some of the possible risks. We ask that you read this, sign it, and return it to our office.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF RISK

You will be living, camping, and traveling out of doors, where you are subject to numerous risks, environmental and otherwise. Meals are prepared over stoves and sometimes open fires, water often requires disinfecting before use. Camping hazards may include burns, cuts, titan diarrhea and flu-like illness, and falling timber.

Environmental risks include rapidly moving, deep or cold water, insects, snakes, and predators, including large animals; falling and rolling rock: lightning, avalanches, flash floods, and unpredictable forces of nature, including weather that may change to extreme conditions without notice. Additional risks are frostbite, high altitude illness, sunburn, heatstroke, dehydration, and other mild or serious conditions.

Decisions are made by the instructors and participants in a wilderness setting, based on a variety of perceptions and evaluations which by their nature are imprecise and subject to errors in judgment. Participants may have free and unsupervised time. Throughout the trip, participants are responsible for their own safety and for the safety of other members of their group.

Rock climbing like all outdoor recreation activities is hazardous. The obvious accidents that occur in rock climbing are falling while climbing. Whenever you fall you may fall only a few feet or all the way to the ground. As you fall you may hit objects or the rocks that are in your path. If the rope breaks your fall, the jolt from the rope may cause injury. Falling to the ground from any height may cause serious injury.

It is also possible that some participants would suffer mental anguish or trauma from the experience or their injuries.

This list is not an exclusive or exhaustive list of possible injuries, trauma or accidents that may occur while Backcountry skiing/Mountaineering. Most of these injuries are rare and you are not likely to encounter them, however they have occurred and you need to know about them and other possible injuries not mentioned above. These injuries occur more often when the participants are using drugs or alcohol or not physically able to undertake the activity.
