Biography: PRESTON KING

Preston King was born in Ogdensburg, N.Y. in 1806, the son of John King and Margaret Galloway. At an early age he was committed to the guardianship of Louis Hasbrouck, an Ogdensburg lawyer. In 1827, King graduated, with honors, from Union College and began to study for the bar with Mr. Hasbrouck. He was admitted to the bar and established a large practice in St. Lawrence County. In 1830, Preston King established and edited the ST. LAWRENCE REPUBLICAN. King served as postmaster of Ogdensburg from 1831 to 1834 when he was elected to the Assembly, where he served for four years. In 1843, King was elected to Congress and served until 1847, and again from 1849 to 1854. Though he was a zealous democrat, and had almost reached the leadership of his party, King left in 1854 and joined the Republicans who nominated him for Secretary of State. In 1854 Preston King was elected to the United States Senate where he served until 1863 when he returned to his law practice in Ogdensburg. In 1864, King was appointed collector of the Port of New York. He assumed his duties in New York during the summer of 1865, and it was while in this position that he died on November 12, 1865. Simeon Smith was a law clerk in the office of Preston King and was married to Jane Webster, a cousin of King. In 1845, Smith moved to Washington and became a clerk in the Registry of Patents office. In 1860, he became the paymaster of the Army in Illinois, and later moved to Chatfield, Minnesota. It was there that Smith conducted an active law practice and assisted immigrants in taking up land grants in the West.
