

G. ATWOOD MANLEY PAPERS COLLECTION #67

SCOPE AND CONTENTS

The Atwood Manley Papers, covering the years 1856-1989, were donated to the university by the Manley family at the time of his death. They comprise 5.16 linear feet of correspondence, manuscripts, photographs, notes, and tapes relating to Manley's interests. Manley wrote several books and articles on Canton-born artist Frederic Remington, so a large portion of the collection consists of correspondence, notes, and manuscripts related to Remington. Manley also wrote a history of the Stillwater Club and did research on other Canton topics, including the history of St. Lawrence University, of which he was a loyal alumnus. Notes for these articles also appear in the collection as well as the manuscripts of two autobiographical pieces. Finally, there are nineteen taped interviews with Manley in which he discourses on many aspects of Canton and St. Lawrence University history such as the county fair, Adirondack guides, Remington, Rushton canoes, the St. Lawrence Plaindealer, Owen D. Young, early college history, Ernest Robinson, the St. Lawrence Seaway, Richardson Hall, Irving Bacheller, Canton hotels, Canton churches, A. Barton Hepburn, the history of the St. Lawrence University Theological School, and Albert Crary.

Manley's life-long interest in his hometown and his alma mater make these papers extremely valuable for anyone doing research on Canton and St. Lawrence University history.

BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION

Gilbert Atwood Manley, known by his middle name, was born in Canton on October 31, 1893. He attended St. Lawrence University, where he was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity. In 1920 he was named St. Lawrence's first director of alumni relations, and in 1951 the Alumni Association honored him with a citation for "loyalty which few can equal and none can surpass."

Manley's grandfather Gilbert Manley bought the local newspaper, The St. Lawrence Plaindealer, from Seth Remington, father of the western artist Frederic Remington, in 1873. The Plaindealer remained a Manley family business until Atwood retired and sold it in 1949. A prolific writer, Atwood Manley co-authored Frederic Remington and the North Country with his daughter Peg; wrote a book on Rushton, Canton's renowned canoe builder; and contributed several chapters to the 1976 book Cranberry Lake from Wilderness to Adirondack Park. He also served as editor of the St. Lawrence County Historical Association's periodical, the Quarterly, and wrote many articles in St. Lawrence publications, in the State Folklore Magazine, and in stamp collectors' journals. (He was one of the prime movers in the campaign for the Frederic Remington stamp issue.)

Active in many civic organizations, Atwood Manley remained an avid booster of Canton until his death in 1989.

16 ATWOOD MANLEY TAPE #19

(CORRECT NAME - GILBERT ATWOOD MANLEY)

General Description - This is a McGraw-Hill Sound Seminar Code 81640. Title The Remington Story, Author Atwood Manley. Copyright McGraw-Hill, may not be duplicated electronically or by any other means without specific written permission, etc.

Apparently speaking from a prepared text, Atwood Manley gives a complete and lively account of Remington's career. Talk is illustrated with slides of Remington's work. I believe the text follows much of Remington in the Land of His Youth.
