Scope and Contents

The papers in this collection of American Statesman Silas Wright, Jr. consist of letters and documents written by Silas Wright between 1816 and 1847, and a few letters written by Wright's family and friends after his death in 1847. The letters are of both a personal and a business nature and include documents signed by Silas Wright Jr. and his father Silas Wright, Sr., of Weybridge, Vermont.

The collection was acquired through purchases and numerous gifts to the University. It consists of over one-hundred original letters and documents, and many photocopies of original letters which are housed at the St. Lawrence County Historical Association in Canton, New York. The Association also has many more items which have not been photocopied for this collection. Persons contributing items to the Silas Wright Collection were: Mary Moody Smith Curran, Friends of the ODY Library, Clark Goodnough, R. M. Gunnison, Atwood and Alice Manley, Col. Lawrence Russell, Mrs. D. C. Salisbury, Ruth Smith See, Mr. Hewlett Strong, and Robertson F. Williams.

St. Lawrence University does not own the literary rights to this collection.

Biographical Sketch

Silas Wright, Jr. was born in 1795 in Amherst, Massachusetts, the fifth child of Silas and Eleanor (Goodale) Wright. The family moved to Weybridge, Vermont where young Silas grew up and was educated. At the age of sixteen, Wright entered Middlebury College. After graduation he studied law at Sandy Hill, New York and was admitted to the bar in 1819. Silas Wright Jr. began his law practice in Canton, New York where he lived with his father's friend Medad Moody whose daughter, Clarissa, he married in 1833.

Almost at once Wright became active in local politics. In 1821, he became county surrogate and within the next ten years, he held a number of public offices and attained the rank of brigadier-general in the militia. In 1823, Wright was elected to the New York State Senate where he served until 1827 where he then took his seat in Congress. He served in Congress until 1829 when he resigned to become comptroller of the state of New York.

In 1833, Wright was chosen to replace William Marcy in the U.S. Senate. Marcy had resigned to become governor of New York. While a member of the Senate, Wright served on the agriculture, commerce, finance, post office and post roads committees, where he came to hold a high ranking position for "solid judgement and unselfish service". Wright resigned from his Senate seat in 1844 to become governor of New York, a position he held until 1846 when he was unsuccessful in his bid for re-election.

Silas Wright returned to Canton where he died in 1847. At the time of his death, Wright, who was reported to be "master of his subject, cool and deliberative, logical and powerful in reasoning," was being considered for the presidency.
