

The Academic Affairs committee will approve courses for diversity credit (DIV). DIV courses are at least one unit and include primary learning goals in which students develop:

- a) an understanding of the nature and significance of diversity within and among groups; and
- b) an understanding of the dynamics of power and justice within and/or among groups or societies; and
- c) a capacity for critical self-reflection on social location, including how social location shapes human interactions.